

iWrite

Hey, tech nerds! Sorry about flaunting a lowercase i, but it's the only way to get your attention.

You're the geniuses who do things nobody understands. This allows you the right to a certain level of snobishness. When you tell others what you do for a living, they pretend to understand—but they don't. And you like it that way.

I accept this and I applaud you. But there's another very important component to websites: the space between the > <. This is the unknown land where "charset" has no value and "equiv" is merely an embarrassing typo.

This is the place where lorem and ipsums hold on as long as they can before being murdered by $$&v$.

I spend hours every day traveling this land. I know the terrain. When you need actual English sentences jammed into your code, contact me. Your clients will be amazed. I am Jef. I write.
